THE WILL CONTROVERSY.

Mrs. Stevenson Denies Writing the Anonymous Letter.

The Stevenson will contest was continued in the District Court yesterday before Judge Rising.

The only testimony of moment in the morning was that given by Mrs. C. C. Stevenson regarding the writing of the anonymous letter. She strenuously denied writing the original letter, which she claimed to have copied for C. C. Stevenson before their marriage. She also held that he had received the letter from an anonymous source. When asked by Attorney Woodburn if she had copied the endorsement on the envelope, addressed to Mrs. Chas. Stevenson Grand Rapids, Michigan, which she also admitted to be in her hand writing, she evaded the question and answered that she had merely copied the letter, as Mr. Stevenson had requested. Mr. Woodburn said that copying the letter and the envelope were two different things, and again asked if Stevenson had requested her to address the letter to Mrs. Chas. Stevenson, who was his wife at the time. She again strenuously denied the authorship of the original document. Admitted that when she heard that the Plaintiffs were in possession of a damaging letter, she went to her deceased husband's safe in search of the document in evidence. She further testified that she had never asked her husband to take a mortgage on his brother's property; that she had always been on the best of terms with the boys, had always treated them kindly and agreeably, and had never interceded with or influenced her husband to have him recall promises of assistance to them.

Frank McCullough and Mr. Shirley, a former mill manager, testified as to the Governor's determined character in business matters and thought he could not be easily influenced.

The defense begged leave to submit the case, but the prosecution asked until Friday to introduce the evidence of a witness from San Francisco, which was granted.

The Court then took a recess until 1:30.
